

CONGREGATION OF THE MISSION GENERAL CURIA

MISSION APPEAL 2014

“It is our vocation not to go just into a parish or a diocese, but the whole world. And to do what? To set people’s hearts ablaze and to do what the Son of Man did...to light a fire on the earth in order to set it aflame with his love.” (St. Vincent, CCD: XI, 207)

ROME, October 19, 2014
World Mission Sunday

Dear Confreres,

May the grace and peace of Our Lord Jesus Christ live forever in our hearts!

In October, as the Church calls us to reflect on our missionary vocation, it is also time for our annual Mission Appeal which supports our international and provincial missions. This appeal also encourages confreres to support the missions by volunteering, praying for our missionaries, and offering financial support by strengthening these missions.

Let me begin by telling you a mission story. Fr. Manny Ginete, a confrere serving in South Sudan, shared his enthusiasm for his mission with me in a recent letter. He has served on the Solidarity with South Sudan (SSS) pastoral team since 2011. This is a venture of the Union of Superiors General in Rome, and they send religious with expertise to help rebuild and renew the Church in South Sudan. Fr. Manny has invited me to ‘come and see’ his life and work there. After describing his ministry and collaboration with other religious, Fr. Manny observed that:

“The bigger picture here is the task of building up the local Church- something our Spanish ‘Padres Paules’ had painstakingly done in the Philippines, by their formation of local and diocesan clergy and lay leaders. I see my role in South Sudan as no different from that of our beloved Spanish missionaries who established the Church and the Congregation there. It has convinced me the ministry I am providing here in South Sudan is as Vincentian as any we do. If we truly want to serve the poorest of the poor, we have come to South Sudan.”

I am looking forward to my visit with Fr. Manny and other dedicated religious next month!

For this years’ Mission Appeal, I am excited to introduce a new website for our International Missions. Entitled, “The Joy of the Gospel.” the web address is www.gospel-joy.org. It provides an overview of our International Missions and the confreres who serve there. The web site also provides a way for you to contact individual confreres via the web site. Please take time to review this web site and see the many great mission efforts made by our confreres.

In this letter, I wish to share information with you on the international and provincial missions of the Congregation. All are in need of personnel and financial support, so please read and reflect on this 2014 Mission Appeal. Ask the Lord Jesus and St. Vincent for the grace to respond as best you are able. Following the listing of these missions, you will find the following:

- Criteria for the selection of volunteers for these missions;
- Information (Next Steps) for those volunteering; and
- How to contribute to the Vincentian Solidarity Fund.

My brothers, as Pope Francis notes in Evangelii Gaudium, all members of the Body of Christ are called to be missionaries and evangelizers. This calling is deeply imbued in each of us by virtue of our Vincentian vocation. As our Holy Father wrote in his apostolic exhortation:

“I dream of a “missionary option”, that is, a missionary impulse capable of transforming everything, so that the Church’s customs, ways of doing things, times and schedules, language and structures can be suitably channeled for the evangelization of today’s world rather than for her self-preservation.” (Pope Francis, Evangelii Gaudium, No. 27)

This “missionary impulse” is inherent to our Vincentian charism. I ask you to reflect on the words of Pope Francis and review details in this letter and on the International Missions website: www.gospel-joy.org. Pray the Lord to awaken in you a desire to live the ‘missionary impulse’ in whatever way you are able. Consider if the Lord is calling you to serve in one of these missions. Support our confreres who serve so generously in the missions by your prayer, financial support, and even by corresponding with them through the web site, which provides a page to do so.

In this “month of the missions” that the Church provides, let us resolve to do what St. Vincent called us to: “To set people’s hearts ablaze and to do what the Son of Man did, who came to light a fire on the earth in order to set it aflame with his love.”

Your brother in St. Vincent,

G. Gregory Gay, C.M.
Superior General

Criterion for selection of volunteers for International Mission ‘ad gentes’

As the realities of life in the international missions are challenging and totally different from that of a confrere’s home province, some criteria is required for selecting missionaries to serve in these places. Using the criteria below, the volunteer will be interviewed by someone from the General Council or by their representative.

1. Missionaries must have emotional stability. Missionary work is hard! Those ministering cross-culturally, if they are to be effective, must learn to speak other languages, learn new cultures, and speak God’s eternal message in changing earthly contexts. Interpersonal relationships with co-workers, confreres who are also going through cultural stress and work anxiety, amplify tension. Only the emotionally stable should make the commitment for long-term, cross-cultural missions.
2. Missionaries must have spiritual maturity. They cannot effectively preach the Gospel by their own initiative and power. They are mere “jars of clay”, who demonstrate that the “all-surpassing power” employed in Christian ministry is “from God and not from us” (2 Cor. 4:7). Missions are thus a “supernatural work” ultimately accomplished by the power of God. Therefore, missionaries must be people who “fall on their knees before the Father” (Eph. 4:2) in prayer. They must also be committed to studying the Bible not only to prepare homilies and lessons, but also to reflect upon God’s will in their own lives.
3. Missionaries must have an intimate relationship with God, one that will influence who they are and how they relate to others. They allow themselves to be increasingly transformed into God’s likeness as they look upon Him (2 Cor. 3:18). Their spiritual maturity should lead them to be effective teachers of the Word of God. Teaching a Christian worldview as revealed by God in Sacred Scripture is integral to the missionary task. Therefore, missionaries sent to foreign mission fields should be those who have taught the Gospel in their own country and culture and have empathetically nurtured the faithful to Christian maturity.
4. Missionaries must have the aptitude and training to effectively build-up churches, nurture new Christians to maturity, and equip national church leaders for Christian service. These are essential tasks of missions. This must be done taking into account the local realities. They should not transport their own cultural church to the mission, but rather allow Gospel values to be implanted in the culture of the place where they serve. Missionaries must be trained to enter new cultures and lay the foundations of the Gospel.
5. Missionaries must have effective interpersonal communication skills. These interpersonal abilities are largely formed through parental, familial and other relational influences in one’s early life, and are difficult to learn as adults. Personalities are also influenced by culture, and vary by country and continent. Despite one’s personality type, all missionaries must have the ability to empathetically enter into the culture where they will minister. This will also include the capacity to work and collaborate as a team.
6. Missionaries should have a pure motive. A missionary should develop a clear and direct motivation for evangelization, a vision for the mission, and service to the poor; always keeping in mind that all this is ultimately for the glory of God alone. The dubious motives of personal gain and vain glory will always defeat the purpose and do harm to the mission and the missionary.

Next Steps: Information for Those Volunteering

1. After a period of serious discernment, if you feel moved to volunteer, please send your letter or e-mail to Rome by November 23, 2014 or again by February 23, 2015, so we can review requests in our Tempo Forte meetings of December 2014 and March 2015.
2. It is helpful to know the language beforehand, but it is not absolutely necessary. A period of cultural and language training will be provided for all missionaries.
3. While we have no automatic age cutoff established, it is necessary that the missionary have reasonably good health and the flexibility needed for inculturation.
4. Confreres who volunteer should inform the Visitor in their province that they have done so. The Superior General will then dialogue with the Visitor about the matter.
5. Your letter should give some background about your person, your ministerial experience, your languages, and your training. It should also express any particular interests that you have, such as the mission in which you would like to take part.
6. Even if you have already written in the past, please make contact again. Experience has shown that confreres not available at one moment might be available at another time.
7. If you are unable or unavailable for the missions, we welcome your monetary contribution to represent your zeal for our missionary endeavors. Every year, many eligible provinces needing help seek a micro-project grant of $5,000 or less from the Vincentian Solidarity Fund. These grants are awarded by the VSO quickly and with minimal paperwork. The VSO reports on the wonderful results of these grants in its quarterly bulletin (see: www.famvian.org/vso). Donations to the Vincentian Solidarity Fund are the only source of funding for the micro-project grants.
